COMMUNICATION THEORY COMMITTEE (Communication Division)

Gentlemen:

I have the honor of notifying you that you have been appointed a member of the Communication Theory Committee by incoming President Chase. Your appointment becomes effective for the administrative year of the Institute beginning August 1, 1961.

The Vice-Chairman and Secretary of this committee, as noted above, were selected by your new Chairman.

The scope of this committee is as follows:

"Treatment of matters of principle and theory in the field of communications, which do not fall within the scope of the other committees of the Division. This would include:

The aspects of information theory of special interest in communication.
The fundamental nature of and requirements for the transmission of communication signals of various types.

The theory and comparative effectiveness of various modulation systems.
Formulation of objectives, evaluation of performance, and methods of measurement.

The relationship between the performance and reliability of communication systems and their important basic components, such as electron tubes, transistors."

The duties of technical committees are defined in the bylaws.

For your convenience, we are enclosing a form for use in notifying us of your acceptance of this appointment. We will appreciate an early return of this form (with complete mailing address) in order that we may prepare our committee cards, list for Organization Manual, know the committee membership, etc.

Very truly yours,

R.S. Gardner, Ass't. Secretary
